

Trauma Responsive Practice in Education and Care Online Training

The Australian Childhood Foundation (ACF), in partnership with the ACT Education Directorate, is offering an online training program to selected services across the Territory. This comprehensive professional learning opportunity is available to all educators across the Australian Capital Territory for a cost of $33.00 GST inclusive per person.

What is the online course about?

This eleven module self-paced learning program provides an overview of the neurobiology of trauma as well as a framework for effectively responding to children and young people who have experienced trauma. This foundational knowledge program looks at trauma responsive practice for children and young people as they learn and grow. These programs have been developed using the wisdom and background of the highly popular and well-evaluated SMART online training that the Australian Childhood Foundation has made available nationally over the past fifteen years.

This training has been contextualised to professionals who work in education and care and includes practical strategies that support vulnerable children and young people to learn, adapt and grow in a range of settings. It considers the basis of children and young people's behaviours that can disrupt their capacity to use relationships around them to help them focus, remember, engage socially and process tasks.

What will this course give me?

- a summary of the knowledge and evidence base about trauma and its impact on child development
- principles of trauma responsive practice
- creative and practical strategies that support the recovery of children and young people from trauma
- ways to collaborate with others to maximise the impact of the support provided to vulnerable children and young people.

How does the training work?

You will receive a registration link. Complete the registration form and it will give you access to the training. You can login multiple times to be able to complete the training.

You will see that there are knowledge checks at the end of most modules. You need to successfully complete each knowledge check to be able to access the next module. This means getting 100% on the knowledge check, but you can have as many attempts as you need.
